Qn. Set Code - 5

6th Sem.
BBA

SPRING END SEMESTER EXAMINATION - 2023

6th Semester BBA

LEADERSHIP IN ORGANIZATION

(BM - 3102)

(For 2020 Admitted batch & previous batches)

Time: 2 Hours Full Marks: 50

Answer ALL questions.

The figures in the margin indicate full marks.

Candidates are required to give their answers in their own words as far as practicable and all parts of a question should be answered at one place only.

1. (a) Identify the major satisfactions and frustrations associated with the leadership role [5]

   (b) Pinpoint several important leadership roles. [5]

OR

   (a) Explain the meaning of leadership and how it differs from management. [5]

   (b) Describe a framework for understanding leadership [5]

2. Carefully read the case answer the questions that follows

   Leadership at McDonald's Corp., the world's best known quick food service restaurant, is proud of the company's cultural diversity. More than 60 percent of the home office and U.S. company workforce are of a racial or ethnic minority, or are women. Approximately two-thirds of the company workforce is located outside the United States. Also, the company has the largest number of minority and women franchise owners in the quick-service industry.

   McDonald's stores (restaurants) are found in 118 countries, with all of them responding to local tastes.

Most of the overseas franchises are locally owned, which helps to adapt the menu to local tastes. A few examples: In Egypt, a customer can order a McFelafel; in Japan, McDonald's serves seaweed burgers; beef is not served in an Indian McDonald's; beer is served in McDonald's restaurants of Munich, Germany; and some McDonald's restaurants in France serve rabbit.

Store-level leaders and managers not only respond to the cultural tastes of customers, they also respond to the cultural values of employees. Richard Floresch, the vice president and chief human resources officer at McDonald's, explains that each manager in a particular market is going to have cultural differences in the way he or she manages. Managers in countries throughout the world are granted considerable independence in dealing with their workforces. For example, in China,the manager might be quicker to seek approval from a superior. A manager in Brazil might respond to the expectations of the community by inviting the parents of a new teenage employee to a family night orientation. In this way, the parents can learn more about their son or daughter's job, thereby reinforcing family values.

McDonald's isn't going to tell someone how to manage people, says Floresch. "That has to be part of the cultural norm."

(a) If McDonald's is still a U.S. company, why should local managers overseas worry about conforming to local cultural values? [5]

(b) If McDonald's is supposed to promote family values in such a big way, how can hard Drink be served in any McDonald's restaurant? [5]

OR

(a) Describe how cultural factors, including values, influence leadership practice. [5]

(b) Explain how global leadership skills contribute to leadership effectiveness [5]

3. (a) Describe how emotional intelligence contributes to leadership effectiveness. [5]

(b) Summarize the strengths and weaknesses of the trait approach to leadership. [5]

OR

(a) Identify several of the impacts of charismatic and transformational leadership on performance and behavior. [5]

(b) Explain the visionary component of charismatic leadership. [5]

4. (a) Discuss the link between business ethics and organizational performance. [5]

(b) Specify key principles of ethical and moral leadership [5]

OR

(a) Explain the potential contribution of outdoor training to the development of team leadership. [5]

(b) Describe how the leader-member exchange model contributes to an understanding of leadership. [5]

5. (a) If reputable companies such as IBM and Apple have been charged with using bribes to obtain sales, why should you worry being ethical? [5]

(b) The majority of business executives accused of unethical behavior have studied ethics either as a subject in a business course or as an entire course. So what do you think went wrong? [5]

OR

(a) Suppose you had inside information that your employer was thinking about declaring bankruptcy, and you find out that a family member was about purchase $200000 in the stock of your employer .To what extent would it be unethical for you to dissuade the family member from making the investment? [5]

(b) How Organization Culture is maintained use examples to illustrate how a new member is introduced to the culture & how it affects the business performance? What Is The Management's Role In Developing An Organization's Culture? [5]

*****